[A Silly Pig]

Haec est fābula dē Porcō Stultō. Porcus Stultus in fundō habitābat. Hic porcus habet nōmen "Porcum Stultum," quod semper rēs stultās agēbat!

Quōdam diē, Porcus Stultus per fundum iter faciēbat et multōs flōrēs vīdit. Statim nōnnūllōs flōrēs cēpit et corōnam flōrum sibi faciēbat. Porcus Stultus, tandem, corōnam in capite posuit.

Corōnā factā, porcus per viam ambulābat. Porcus putābat omnēs gerere dēbēre tantās corōnās. Igitur ille lacrimābat, ubi equus malus rīdet, "Ecce! Porce Stulte! Nōn decet porcōs gerere flōrēs in capitibus!"

"Corōnae ā porcīs nōn faciuntur," alia animālia inquit. "Hominēs sōlī corōnās facere possunt."

stultus, stulta, stultum: foolish, silly

fundus, fundi, m.: a farm

quōdam diē = "one day"

nōnnūllus, nōnnūlla, nōnnūllum: not none, i.e. "some"

flōs, flōris, m.: a flower

corōna, corōnae, f.: a crown

This is a story about Silly Pig. Silly Pig lived on a farm. This pig has the name "Silly Pig" because he was always doing silly things!

One day, Silly Pig was making a journey through the farm and saw many flowers. Immediately he picked some flowers and made a crown of flowers for himself. Finally, Silly Pig put the crown on his head.

When the crown had been made, the pig walked along a path. The pig thought that everyone ought to wear crowns this big. Therefore, he did not cry when an evil horse laughed, "Look! Hey, Silly Pig! It is not proper for pigs to wear flowers on their heads!"

"Crowns are not made by pigs," other animals said. Only men are able to make crowns."
